MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Assistant Director, CR
FROM : Chief, Document Division
SUBJECT : Evaluation of Suggestion No. 58-514
Inclined Writing

1. Comments from [REDACTED]

"For classification work, many of our document analysts are using the wooden "push-back" divider from the deep bottom drawer of desks as an incline stand for the large Code Book. This maintains the book in a convenient open position with no strain on the eye. Many Divisions have asked who designed these boards for us.

"However, this device does not serve as a writing stand."

2. Comments from [REDACTED]:

"It would seem to me that a piece of wood attached to the clip board would be less expensive than the binder. Suggestion should be referred to the Logistics people who can probably find a slanted clip board in the office equipment catalogs which would better serve the suggestor's needs."
